New York Water Environment Association
Elects Robert Kukenberger, of Cazenovia, President

Syracuse -- The New York Water Environment Association (NYWEA) elected Robert J. Kukenberger of Cazenovia, NY, its 2008 president at its 80th Annual Meeting in New York City, February 4-6. Kukenberger is a professional engineer and vice president of CDM in Syracuse.

The New York Water Environment Association (NYWEA), a nonprofit statewide membership organization of environmental engineers and water quality management professionals, hosted a successful 80th Annual Meeting of over 1,000 members, scientists and public officials in attendance. Its program included 20 technical educational sessions on water quality management issues and related technological innovations, elections of its 2008 officers, and award presentations to a number of its members as well as public officials who have worked to protect the water environment.

NYWEA is a statewide, nonprofit organization of over 2,300 environmental engineers and water quality management professionals that promotes clean water programs and related technical education. NYWEA sponsors a statewide scholarship program to encourage careers in science and engineering and supports humanitarian assistance to provide clean water to communities around the world. Headquartered in Syracuse, NY, NYWEA has seven regional chapters, 12 college student chapters and is a Member Association of the international Water Environment Federation (WEF).
